RE: AGENDA ITEM 2.13: High Speed Rail MOU

Dear Mayor Liccardo and Esteemed Councilmembers,

PAC* SJ strongly supports Councilmember Peralez’s Agenda Item 2.13 proposed memorandum and we urge its unanimous adoption by City Council today. As you are no doubt aware, there is enormous uncertainty surrounding the fate of the historic landmark Diridon Station and its place (or lack thereof) in the in-progress Diridon Integrated Station Concept (DISC) Plan. While planned track expansions, realignments, and the addition of High Speed Rail service will require significant station additions and expansions, we believe that this modernization can and must include preservation and adaptive reuse of the existing historic station structure. This effort will obviously require careful planning and close coordination with other elements of the DISC and DSAP plans, and must be planned in tandem with these other elements— not after these other elements are already set in stone.

In December 2021, PAC* SJ included Diridon Station in our first-ever Endangered Properties List (what we’re calling the “Endangered Eight”: www.preservation.org/e8) and are currently circulating a public petition (www.preservation.org/dontdemodiridon) calling on the City and other key stakeholders to prioritize preservation as a guiding principle of the DISC planning process. The public response (600+ signatures and counting) has been illuminating: there is overwhelming support for the station’s preservation, and overwhelming incredulity that the City would even consider its demolition. We attach the petition and its signatories for your consideration.

Constructed in 1935 as the crown jewel of the Southern Pacific Railroad's San Francisco-San José line, Diridon Station's significance and civic prominence are unparalleled. Befitting its historic and cultural stature, the depot and surrounding support structures were listed in the National Register of Historic Places in 1993, designated a San Jose City Landmark in 1994, and are protected by a legally binding preservation covenant with the South Bay Historical Railroad Society. Each of these designations was intended to ensure that the historic station's character-defining features were to be protected from demolition or adverse alteration, and to remain an integral part of San José's urban fabric for current and future generations. Will these obligations be ignored under your watch? We sincerely hope not.

In 1963, New York City made the shortsighted—and now universally regretted—decision to demolish its historic Penn Station, a tragedy that in no small measure inspired the rise of the current historic preservation movement in the United States. Since then, remarkably few cities have dared repeat New York's mistake, and the preservation and adaptive reuse of historic train stations have become a bedrock strategy for urban redevelopment and place-making efforts in towns and cities across the country. Even the nation's most celebrated new multi-modal transit centers, including Denver's ultra-modern and award-winning Union Station, have included the preservation of historic resources as fundamental elements of their design. San José should demand nothing less for Diridon Station, and must be proactive, comprehensive, and publicly transparent in its planning efforts to do so.

Sincerely,

Ben Leech

Don't Demo Diridon!

To Mayor Sam Liccardo, Members of the San José City Council, and Diridon Integrated Station Concept Plan member organizations (City of San Jose, Caltrain, CA High-Speed Rail Authority, and VTA):

I support the preservation of San Jose's historic Diridon Station! Listed in the National Register of Historic Places, designated a San Jose City Landmark, and subject to a legally-binding preservation covenant, Diridon Station must remain an integral part of San Jose's urban fabric for current and future generations. While planned station expansions and modifications are necessary, modernization must include preservation and adaptive reuse of the existing historic Diridon Station. The complete absence of any clear preservation strategy in the current Diridon Integrated Station Concept (DISC) Plan is simply unacceptable. Preservation must be a guiding principle of the DISC plan, not an inconvenient afterthought. Peer cities around the nation and the world have embraced the preservation and adaptive reuse of their historic train stations as bedrock strategies for urban redevelopment and creative place-making. San Jose should demand nothing less for Diridon Station, and must be proactive, comprehensive, and publicly-transparent in its planning efforts to do so.

Sincerely,

2021-10-16T15:28:13Z	Tom	Dundas	95134	Enough with the destruction of the older buildings to overpopulate the area. Build underground with the Bart expansion and over the tracks. The station should be the iconic gateway to the area. People need to remember the past and how life used to be so people can appreciate change and have a sense of what is was like to live 80+ years ago. Younger generation have no idea and they need to respect the past. I have seen the supposed improvements made in SJC and poor planning and complete disregard of the citizens concerns. Hire an architect and give them the directive to save and incorporate without destroying/remodeling the current structure. If you want tkt expand, great. Leave the old as I find the building interesting.

2021-10-15T18:57:00Z	Alison	England	95125 Planners were asleep at the wheel during the '80s when so much of downtown was demolished. Stunning, historic buildings were destroyed that could have given the downtown area real cache. The train station should have historic status and be retained. That would not preclude adding other elements to it, in the vicinity. Planners need to wake up and realize you can't replace fabulous architecture. Find a way to feature it, not dispose of it out of supposed convenience.

Requiring no special modification, and standing just as it does today, it can continue to serve its purpose as a functional transit hub and historical asset to the community, communicating the value of history in an area so rapt with the future. Losing the historic Diridon Station would be an aesthetic disaster as great as if we had lost the California theatre of St. Joseph's Cathedral. Dirodon Station is a structure on a par with resources such as these. By all means, upgrade its technical infrastructure, if needed, but leave it aesthetically alone! We--and future generations--will thank you.

Burlingame Broadway Grade Separation Project

Dear Caltrain Neighbor,

Please join us for a community meeting for an update on the Preliminary Design Phase for the Burlingame Broadway Grade Separation Project.

Meeting Information

August 8, 2018, 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Burlingame Library, Lane Room

480 Primrose Road, Burlingame

The high traffic volumes at the Broadway railroad crossing results in some of the worst traffic congestion in the region. A preferred design alternative was approved by the Burlingame City Council in 2017 for the Broadway Grade Separation Project. The project will separate the tracks from the road at Broadway by partially raising the tracks and partially lowering the road which will improve safety and circulation for motorists, pedestrians, and bicyclists; reduce congestion; and increase railroad operational efficiency. The project will also construct a new elevated Broadway Station with updated amenities. Caltrain, in cooperation with the City of Burlingame, invites you to learn the progression of the preliminary design.

For more information or to sign up for project updates, visit www.caltrain.com/BBGS.

February 3, 2022

Mr. Steve Heminger, Chair
Peninsula Corridor Joint Powers Board
1250 San Carlos Avenue
San Carlos, California 94070-1306

Dear Chair Heminger,

On November 15th President Biden signed the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act, a bipartisan infrastructure law that makes the largest investment in our nation's physical infrastructure since the building of the Interstate Highway System in the 1950s. The law provides funding through more than 375 distinct programs of which 125 are newly created, and the Bay Area is well positioned to compete for $140 billion in discretionary grants for roads, bridges, public transportation, water infrastructure, ports, electric buses, airports, and more.

To help local communities navigate the law's numerous funding opportunities, I'm pleased to share with you the White House's Guidebook to the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law. This document provides important information about which federal programs your projects may be eligible for, contact information for relevant federal agencies, and timelines for distributing funds where available. You can find the guidebook and a searchable online database of each funding opportunity at build.gov.

The historic bipartisan infrastructure law will help modernize our nation's infrastructure to reduce traffic, grow our economy, create jobs, and cut greenhouse gas emissions, and I'm committed to delivering the benefits of this law to my constituents. I hope the Guidebook is helpful to you, and know that I stand ready to support your applications for discretionary grants. Should you have any questions, you can contact Eric Henshall in my Washington, D.C. office at (202) 225-8104.

All my best,

Anna G. Eshoo
Member of Congress
